The HHSS Junior Soccer team had their hands full when they met up with the aggressive I.E. Weldon Club last Wednesday on Haliburton's soil. The Redmen fell 3-0 to the Wildcats in this match. The senior team didn't have any better luck, losing 4-3 in the second game of the day. Chris Holliday-Rhodes had to leave the field in the first half with an eye injury and coach Walter Tose said his presence was missed. The Wildcats scored a couple of fluke goals that helped give them the edge in this match. Jan Haedicke scored two of Haliburton's goals while Darryl Winder scored one. Holliday Rhodes was still in the hospital in Bracebridge as of last Friday. The Redmen's final game of the schedule is Wednesday at LCVI. They need a win to qualify for the playoffs.

Ride will return

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Ride for Sight is returning to Minden.

Council voted unanimously last Wednesday to allow the two-day event to take place on the Fair Grounds next year as a result of a strong vote of confidence from the community.

Ride for Sight representatives Syd Collier and Jerry German attended the meeting to hear council's decision whether or not the charity motorcycle rally would be allowed back to Minden for another year.

Reeve Ray Moore opened the discussion by reading a prepared statement supporting the Ride. He said he had considered all the criticisms voiced against the event such as the inconvenience of street blockages, noise and the costs of policing involved. "These are perhaps our own selfish individual reasons for not wanting this event to return to Minden," Moore said.

"However, as Reeve of Anson, Hindon and Minden Townships, I must weigh the benefits against the few isolated incidents that have taken place and help to eliminate the perceived cultural vision of motorcyclist."

If Minden is not receptive to the Ride for Sight, some other community will be, said Moore, and the area will lose "the exposure of our community through the media to thousands of

New columnist in The Times

The 1990's have been called the "turn around decade", the time when action must be taken to halt and reverse the degradation man has visited on this planet. For years warning signals have been raised pointing out that the world community is rapidly coming to the end of the finite resources that sustain human existence ... clean air, clean water, arable land.

Among those who have taken a leadership role in pointing out the folly of our ways is Canadian environmentalist Dr. David Suzuki. This week we are pleased to welcome Dr. Suzuki to our pages as a weekly columnist.

Dr. Suzuki has made a major contribution to increasing awareness of the crisis facing our planet. His ideas are sometimes controversial and often challenge the way we perceive the world around us and its resources. But, as many have pointed out, there is little time left to simply ignore the growing dilemma. It is time to think and act. We believe the weekly commentary offered by Dr. Suzuki will provide an enlightened and informed forum which will help chart our way through the turn around decade.

Pines will be spared

Minden's Twelve Mile Lake Cemetery is not going to lose all its trees.

There has been concern recently that the township was planning to chop down all the white and red pines which have been on the property for up to 100 years. But council laid those fears to rest when they assured that only the dead and dying trees would be removed and that the healthy white pines would be left uncut.

A group of people opposed to cutting the trees attended last Wednesday's council meeting armed with a petition signed by more than 20 local residents.

The group's spokesperson, Marilyn Mighton, addressed

Trappers angered by ministry's zero quota

There is to be no trapping of wolves in Algonquin because of ongoing research project

The decision to put a stop to wolf trapping in Clyde, Bruton or Eyre Townships this year is angering trappers, who work the lines in that part of Algonquin Park.

The Ministry of Natural Resources says the move was made to protect wolves that have been fitted with radio collars as part of a research project. Some trappers, however, see this as a ploy to get them out of the park.

Rick Stankiewicz, District Enforcement Officer at the ministry office in Whitney, said a "zero quota" has been placed on wolves in these three townships this year. For the past three years a research program has been ongoing, he said. The timber wolves that roam the park are being fitted with radio collars in order to help the research team track them and record their migration patterns.

By allowing trapping to continue, "research efforts are being jeopardized, or compromised," said Stan-kiewicz.

Clyde, Bruton and Eyre Townships are the only areas within Algonquin Park where trapping and hunting are permitted. Trapping is to be phased out over the next 21 years. Hunting is an issue that is being addressed in the Algonquin Park review, which is currently underway.

Keith Hughes, who has trapped a large part of Clyde and Bruton Townships for the past 15 to 20 years, suspects the move may be designed to force trappers out of the park long before the 21-year time span elapses.

When Keith Hughes was a boy, he says there were no wolves to be seen in this area. Now, he says there are few deer where he traps in Clyde and Bruton Townships.

he's afraid this trapping ban will reverse that trend.

The Algonquin Park Masterplan prohibits all trapping within the park's boundaries. However, when Clyde and Bruton Townships were added to the park in 1961 by a special act of the Ontario Legislature, it was stipulated that the existing uses of hunting and trapping were to continue.

Stankiewicz says that other species of fur-bearing animals may continue to be trapped. He admits that the level of wolf trapping in the park has not been a problem, but says it is counterproductive to allow it to continue while this research project is underway.

The research project, is been going on for the past three years and is headed up by Graham Forbes from the University of Waterloo. In the last few years a lot of these wolves have been killed by various means, says Stankiewicz. Many of these wolves were killed by cars, but the ministry can't control that. It can, however, control the deer, and he says the wolves are to blame.

Hughes, 58, says he remembers when the reverse was true. He says there used to be plenty of deer in the act of the Ontario Legislature, it was stipulated that the existing uses of hunting and trapping were to continue.

Stankiewicz says that other species of fur-bearing animals may continue to be trapped. He admits that the level of wolf trapping in the park has not been a problem, but says it is counterproductive to allow it to continue while this research project is underway.

Hughes, 58, says he remembers when the reverse was true. He says there used to be plenty of deer in the ever, control the number of kills by trappers and that's the reason for the zero quota this year.

Less than a year ago, the ministry instructed municipalities to lift their wolf bounties, which took away part of the incentive for wolf trapping. Hughes, however, says it isn't the bounty or the value of a wolf pelt that encourages him to trap these animals. He says he traps them to ensure that a healthy beaver population exists.

One local trapper is so fed up with it all that, after a meeting with ministry staff in Whitney, he dropped his licence on the

"We don't want to get them all," Hughes says of the wolves. "We just want to get enough to protect the beavers."

"It's not the price of the pelt. That's not worth much," says Hughes. "It's worth more to me to just get rid of them and protect the deer and beaver."

Hughes, who traps about half of Clyde Township and several hundred acres in Bruton Township, says he has a quite a bit of money tied up in trapping equipment. Unless the wolf population is controlled, he feels he will have no cause to use that equipment in the park.

A learning adventure

After last week's successful visit at Camp Wanakita by Grade 7 students from Archie Stouffer Elementary School, the school board should be giving serious consideration to making this an annual event for Grade 6 students across the county.

The students' participation last week in the Sunship Earth program at the Camp Wanakita Outdoor Centre taught them something they could never learn in the confines of a traditional classroom. They gained an understanding of where, exactly, they fit in with nature. This unique experience succeeded in planting a seed within each of these students that will flourish in the years to come and benefit us all.

This program is the only one of its kind in all of Ontario. Ironically, although it is offered right at our doorstep, no Haliburton County elementary school students had been allowed to participate until last week.

The school board's reluctance to send students to this program is understandable. If it was implemented across the county at the school board's expense, it would strain an already strapped budget.

Another option is to ask the parents to pay the shot. However, this would result in an unequal system that gives the wealthy an advantage over the low-income families of the community. This is not acceptable in our public education system.

The answer, then, is to find alternative funding to ensure that every student has the same opportunity to attend. With the students who attended last week's session, this was accomplished with the help of the Minden Legion and Rotary Clubs. Other organizations may also be willing to help finance this program in the future if the board decides to try to make it available to all the Grade 6 classes.

Considering the growing interest in environmental issues in the Highlands (this was rated as the number one issue by respondents to The Times readers survey), the Sunship Earth program could be a valuable instrument in teaching our youth to be more aware of their impact on the planet. We are fortunate to have the program available so close to home. It would be a shame to allow more students to miss out on this unique opportunity.

It's true you know — animals seem to lack the evil gene. And how do we show our gratitude for this generosity? We treat 'em even worse.

Consider the scientific community. Right now there is a Soviet satellite winging around our planet containing rats. These rats have two distinguishing characteristics: first they are Canadian (this is a joint Soviet-Canadian project); secondly, each rodent has one or more broken legs. Hunters shoot lame game

Editor:

I would like to use your Opinion column to speak to a couple of hunters.

To the two Hunters who shot the Canada Goose in Deep Bay:

Dear Sirs:

First of all, I wish to thank you for shooting the goose while I was away. At least you spared me from seeing my friend killed.

He came to my area of Gull Lake in early May of this year. It was clear from the start that he was injured with a broken wing. Although I called the Ministry of Natural Resources for help with him, I was told there was no help available.

I then started to feed him and hope that his wing would heal. As the summer progressed, his wing did not heal, but he made a lot of friends in the area. Many times when I went to feed him, someone else had left bread for him also, so I know I wasn't alone in trying to help him. He came to trust Man to a certain degree, although he remained wild. He travelled around Deep Bay and made many friends.

I saw you hunters watching him, and as soon as you saw me watching you, you drove away. I know that you knew he was an injured Goose, but yet you shot him anyway. Did it make you feel good that you killed an injured bird with Three shotgun shells? Did he run away so quickly that One shot was not enough? I sure hope the story you told your friends was far more interesting than the truth. Thank you for taking away my friend and I hope you have enjoyed him as much as I had.

Immediate shift in attitudes is necessary

Global politics for my entire adult life has been dominated by Cold War rhetoric and a horrific buildup of arms by the superpowers and their allies. Although the danger of nuclear Armageddon from an accident or "human error" remains unacceptably high, Gorbachev's initiatives have been the first real step back in the game of nuclear chicken.

As we prepare for the '90s, the period of Worldwatch Institute has designated the "Turn-around Decade," we face yet another peril - a planet so overrun with humans, stripped of its life carrying capacity and poisoned that it may become uninhabitable. The situation demands an immediate and massive shift in human attitudes and priorities.

And people can make such a change. Stanford University ecologist, Paul Ehrlich, reminds us that after Pearl Harbor, North Americans underwent a radical change in lifestyle and expectations because they had no choice. Today, he says, we face "a billion environmental Pearl Harbors all at once" that demand the same scale of response. Our "security" is threatened by changes in the global biosphere and it makes sense therefore, that the Department of National Defence (DND) should change its focus from a military to an ecological emphasis.

A handful of politicians is now seriously proposing such an option. One of them is former federal Minister of the environment, Charles Caccia (Liberal). He has written a paper outlining the economics and politics of such a shift. His rationale is simple and convincing:

"What good is it to enjoy the protection of military alliances ... when at the same time holes in the ozone layer, atmospheric pollution, destruction of the rain forests, desertification, soil erosion, water contamination, badly stored toxic waste, to name a few ... threaten our very survival, let alone

by Dr. David Suzuki

our economic and physical health? ... What good is it for Europe to have 4 million Soviet and 2 million NATO troops on its soil for military security, while at the same time the Rhine, the Loire, the Baltic Sea, the Po River, the Adriatic Sea, you name it, are going belly up? ... The fact of the matter is that we are now on a dual path of mutually assured destruction, driven by environmental as well as nuclear threats."

Canadians have always prided ourselves in being a peace loving nation and concerned about the environment. But the federal budget reveals a very different agenda. The ratio of money spent on Defence and on the Environment in 1984 was 12:1. But the "environmentally concerned" government of 1989 spent in a ratio of 14:1! Caccia's analysis is revealing:

"In 1985 the budget for DND amounted to $9,165 billion. This represented 6.9% of the total budget. In 1985, Environment Canada with a budget of $701 billion commanded only 0.7% of the total federal budget, a decrease of 7% from the previous year ... Using 1983 constant dollars, we find that between 1983 and 1989 the budget of DND went up from $7,973 to $9,157 billion, an increase of $1,184 billion or 14.8%," while in the same interval "the budget of Environment Canada decreased from $704 to $703 million." So allowing for inflation, Defence got $1 billion more while Environment fell by a million. This is a tangible measure of the government's priorities.

Our government has simply followed the U.S. lead where over the same period "in terms of constant 1983 dollars, defence spending rose $32.7 billion or 14.6%, while EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) spending decreased $66 million or 1.5%." We should note that the cost of a massive program to save forests, topsoil and energy estimated by the Worldwatch Institute at about $770 billion over 10 years, amounts to less than 10% of all military expenditures worldwide. Caccia says Canada should augment its role in global security by pressing for "elimination of famine, poverty, desertification; stopping soil erosion, water contamination, forest, grassland and fisheries depletion; putting the economies of developing countries on a healthy footing; ... using resources in a careful way."

Caccia points out "A stronger stand on international environmental issues must be based on an improvement of environmental performance at home. We would have to rethink our energy policies, if we are serious about doing our share in reducing the global warming trend. Policies in agriculture, forestry, fisheries, transport and taxation ... would have to be brought into line with the aim of achieving global environmental security." To that end he recommends that the men and women in the armed forces be used to enforce environmental security. He stresses the need for economic policies that make ecological sense. We must "reorder our spending and budget priorities, change the design of government organization; ... re-examine the role of CIDA and our role at the World Bank, regional banks, the IMF, etc."

Caccia has presented an important set of challenges and specific recommendations that have to be debated in the political arena. My generation grew up with the Cold War and nuclear weapons but today's youngsters know the real battle is to save the planet's environment.

ASES

Kids are passengers in a voyage around the sun

ASES students aboard their sunship at Camp Wanakita.

'You must teach your children that the ground beneath their feet is the ashes of our grandfathers . . . whatever befalls the earth befalls the sons of the earth. Man did not weave the web of life; he is merely a strand in it. Whatever he does to the web, he does to himself.'

These words, spoken towards the closing of a four-day voyage on Sunship Earth, will seem cryptic to the average person. However, the message is clear to the passengers who boarded the sunship last Tuesday on their journey to discovery.

The passengers, all Grade 7 students from Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden, travelled 9.6 million miles through space in an orbit around the sun without ever lifting their feet from the rocky soil of Haliburton County. On this journey through the solar system, they learned to pilot their craft in a manner that is safe to all the life forms aboard.

The mission of this voyage was to teach passengers how to steer their ship away from troubles. Many of the automatic life-support systems are failing because untrained passengers have been tampering with them. For this reason, the systems have to be maintained with manual controls. This four-day journey, which ended Friday, taught the young passengers how to keep these manual controls in operation.

The sunship, if you haven't already guessed, is the planet earth. The passengers are all the living things on the planet, including man. And the life-support systems are the various tools of nature that maintain a habitable environment.

The Grade 7 students from ASES were the first passengers from Haliburton county to participate in the Sunship Earth program offered at the Camp Wanakita Outdoor Centre near Donald. For four days and three nights they lived at the camp and took part in activities designed to give them a better understanding of the workings of their planet—their sunship.

Dave Newnham, who is in charge of the Sunship Earth program at Wanakita, says students from Haliburton Highlands Secondary School have been involved in the program for several years as counsellors. However, this is the first time since the program was initiated in the fall of 1986 that elementary students from this county have been able to take advantage of the program.

Wanakita, a forested, 1,000-acre property on the shore of Lake Koshlong, is one of two locations in all of Canada that offer this unique Earth Education program. And until last week, the only school boards that had taken advantage of it were Hamilton, Peel and Durham.

Mainly because of the cost of the program—about $150 per student—the Haliburton school board has been reluctant to send any students for the full program. This year, though, there was a late opening in the schedule. And with the urging of several teachers, the board agreed to allow the Grade 7 classes to participate on a trial basis. The Minden Legion and Rotary Club made contributions to reduce the costs to parents, and last Tuesday at noon the students arrived at the camp for the trip of a lifetime.

The entire program is designed in a way that motivates the students to want to learn. The motivational tools, according to Newnham, are magic and adventure, which combine to make the whole trip fun.

"The applications sets the stage it lets them no they are not going to camp," says Sunship Earth organizer Dave Newnham.

Soon after stepping down from the bus at the gates of Wanakita, the students learn that they are, indeed, about to embark on a journey. In order to board the sunship, each student must first fill out a passport application.

The questions in this application, though, are a bit more challenging than those you would find in a traditional passport application. One of the questions, for example, asks how many times they have orbited around the sun as a passenger on Sunship Earth. (Since earth travels around the sun once every 365 days, the answer is your age.)

The application also asks them to figure out what supplies (food, air and water) they will need to last out the trip. Try this one out yourself: "A large portion of water will go towards making sure there will be enough food for your stay. For example, it takes about 5,000 litres of water to produce one litre of milk and about 7,000 litres of water to produce one kilogram of meat. If you drink three litres of milk and eat one kilogram of meat while you are at the Sunship Study Station, how much water will that take?"

"The application sets the stage," says Newnham. "It lets them know they are not going to camp."

With passports in hand, the students are now ready to blast off. They are all taken to the "zoom room", a specially-designed building that Newnham says makes the students feel like they are walking into a sort of magic tunnel. "It's a magic window into space," he says. This is where they get their mission for the week.

At Wanakita, the students aren't likely to learn the names of all the varieties of plants, trees and animals. Instead, Newnham says their mission is to gain an understanding of "the big ecological concepts."

EC-DC-IC-A: These are the keys that unlock sunship's mysteries

To help the students remember the concepts they are taught the EC-DC-IC-A formula. The 'E' in the formula stands for Energy Flow, the first 'C' is for Cycles, 'D' is for Diversity, the second 'C' is for Community, 'I' is for Interrelationships, the third 'C' is for Change, and 'A' stands for Adaption.

To understand how these concepts come into play in nature, the students head out each day onto hiking trails where dozens of activity centres are set up. Here, the "Wizards" (staff) help the students discover examples of the concept that station is designed to teach.

The activities are set up like games, which the kids obviously enjoy. Instead of giving a lecture on nature, the Wizards lead the students through the game, often asking questions and coaxing the them to look for the answers. As a result, the students make their own discoveries.

King Sneed's Magical Forest is one of the centres that encourages the children to discover the interrelationships between living things. King Sneed believes that all things exist on their own, independent of all other life. The students, who already know this isn't true, have to find examples of interrelationships in nature to prove the king wrong.

One example that a student came up with is that trees and worms depend on each other. Falling leaves provide the worms with food, he noted. By eating the leaves, the worms help break down the plant matter, which is returned to the soil and soaked up by the tree.

The lesson learned from this is that all plants and animals are related. Some

A funeral service for a dead leaf was a sad occasion at Camp Wanakita last week. But it turned into a birthday party when the kids realized the leaf would ultimately provide food for new trees.

'They can see the concepts going on all around them. They're not learning the names of plants and animals but that's not the point.'

compete for the same needs while others work together to meet their needs. All of them depend on one another to maintain the conditions suited for life on earth.

Once the students work their way through an activity, they pull out their passports and find out which concept they were experiencing. The passports are then stamped by the Wizard and the kids move on to the next centre.

"They can see the concepts going on all around them," says Newnham. "They're not learning the names of plants and animals, but that's not the point."

The last page of the passport invites the student to come up with a plan to correct one of their environmental bad habits. "Everyone has bad habits," says Newnham. It could be forgetting to turn off the lights when you leave a room or it could be wasting water by allowing a tap to run. He says the idea is to pick one bad habit and make an effort to break it.

To encourage the students to work on this, they write on a piece of paper what habit it is they want to break and place that paper into a globe. The teacher brings that globe back to school and will later pull out the slips of paper and ask if the students are making progress.

On Friday afternoon the students returned from their journey, but the most important part of their mission has yet to be accomplished. "The most important part of the trip is to return home and tell your people about it," says Newnham. "The sunship is in trouble and it's our fault," he says. "How can we help out," he asks.

"Before, they could say they didn't know," he says. But after their week at Wanakita the students now know that they know they are a part of nature and whatever they do affects life around them. This is the message that Chief Seattle was conveying in his talk with the students.

BUY THEM WHERE YOU RIDE THEM!

There are a lot of good reasons to buy your snowmobile from a Haliburton Highlands Snowmobile Dealer, especially if you ride the local trails.

1. Local dealers know the area - they know the machine best suited to your requirements and the terrain in which you'll be riding.
2. Nothing can be more frustrating than a wasted weekend because of service requirements. Local dealers make a special effort to ensure their customers get maximum trail time. And, when your sled needs regular service, what could be more convenient than to leave it one weekend and pick it up the next — ready to go.
3. Local dealers support the local snowmobile trail clubs. They are keenly interested in ensuring you have the best possible trails and take an active part in representing all rider interests at the club level.
4. Local dealers can be an excellent source of information to make your snowmobiling outing even more fun. They can advise you what's on, how to get there, great places to visit, eat, relax and enjoy. In many ways, they are your key to an enjoyable time on your sled in the Highlands.

Haliburton's policing may be upgraded

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

An OPP officer may soon be assigned full-time to Haliburton Village in response to concerns raised by Dysart et al council about the quality of law enforcement services currently being provided.

The proposal was discussed at last Monday's council meeting when Reeve Murray Fearrey reported on a meeting he and Deputy-Reeve Bill Davis had with Staff Sergeant Steve Adam of Minden's OPP detachment.

"We don't believe we're getting adequate protection," Fearrey said. He relayed to Adam some of the concerns expressed by council and members of Haliburton's Business Improvement Area (BIA).

The problem boils down to the fact that the Minden detachment is undersized, said Fearrey.

Fearrey told council of a program being tested in other rural areas that has an OPP officer stationed in a specific community and suggested that council request a similar arrangement be made for Haliburton Village.

In a telephone interview, Adam said the village has been identified as being a feasible location to station a community-based officer.

In order to qualify for the program, the current police work load in the village will be examined to ensure that a community-based officer is required.

If a need is demonstrated, Adam says the next step is to establish a Police Affairs Committee to oversee the duties of the officer.

The five- or six-person committee would consist of representatives from municipal council and members of the community who would be interested in police service. Adam suggested that the BIA, service clubs and school board would all be examples of organizations that might be represented on the Police committee.

Townships face large hikes in fees

Fire protection rates in Lutterworth and Snowdon Townships will be jumping again, but this time Minden is not to blame.

Lutterworth and Snowdon Townships buy fire protection from neighbouring municipalities and last year they faced a stiff increase when Minden Council decided to review its rates. This time around it's Somerville Township that is updating its rates, which will result in dramatic increases to the two townships.

According to the Somerville Township Clerk, the increases were deemed necessary by council. She said council felt the other townships were not paying a fair share of the $60,000 annual cost to maintain the fire department.

In Lutterworth Township, the standby fee is being raised to $6,500 per year. This is up from the $4,000 that Lutterworth paid last year.

In addition, the fees for callouts and labour are increasing substantially. Lutterworth will have to pay $200 per truck for the first hour of a call-out and $150 per truck for each hour thereafter. In the past, the call-out fee was $100 to a maximum of $200.

On top of all this, Lutterworth is being asked to pay labour costs of $7.50 per man, per hour, for the first hour. The fee drops to $6.50 per hour thereafter.

Lutterworth Council had its first opportunity to consider the fee hikes at its last meeting, but deferred the matter to its next meeting.

Snowdon Township faces similar fee hikes. The standby fee is going up to $3,500 from the $1,500 that was paid last year. The call-out fee in Snowdon will match that being charged to Lutterworth.

Entertainer comes to Minden

by Joel Levis

Music From Almost Anything with Chick Roberts starts off the 1989 program schedule for the Haliburton County Public Library.

Chick dispenses a varied formula of fun and laughter with an entertaining show of what he describes as "urban jugband and good-time music from the 1920's and 30's for kids of all ages."

With Chick as your guide, you will learn how to make and play jugband instruments and to use the body and mouth in making music. The whole orchestra could become the band.

Chick is a veteran entertainer with many years experience at crowd-pleasing. His easy manner and vast fund of fun songs have endeared him to children all over Ontario through his work with Mariposa in the schools.

There will be two performances on Wednesday, October 18, both of which are free for everyone.

One performance will be at the school in Gooderham on behalf of the Glamorgan Branch to begin at 1:30 p.m. Another performance will be held by the Minden Branch at Archie Stouffer School to begin at 9:30 a.m.

Everyone is invited to both or either shows. All shows are presented by the Haliburton County Public Library on behalf of the Ministry of Culture and Communications.

Great commitment required

The program would have one office assigned to work a 40-hour week in Haliburton Village. Adam said in most cases the township is required to provide accommodation for the officer, but in Haliburton's case the OPP already has the extended services building on Maple Street, between the Drag River and York Street.

The committee would be responsible for "setting goals" for the community-based officer, says Adam. They would determine which specific problems the officer should concentrate on.

The officer would still report through the Minden detachment, and would still have to satisfy his commitments to the force, but his on-duty time would be spent in the village of Haliburton.

The program requires a significant commitment on the part of the officer assigned to the community, says Adam. He must forego a regular shift rotation and adjust his schedule to the times when he's needed most. In Haliburton, that would mean working most weekend evenings. The officer must also find time to attend the meetings of the Police Affairs Committee.

During times when the officer is off duty, calls to the Haliburton office would automatically be relayed to the Minden office and the detachment will respond. Officers will also assist the Haliburton-based person if back-up is required, said Adam.

The program has been tested in small communities near Barrie and Mount Forest and Adam says it has received nothing but favourable comments from those involved. He admits it would be an improvement to the current situation.

By dealing with the same officer all the time, people in the community get to know that person and a better working relationship develops, says Adam.

Dysart council doesn't believe the current strength of the Minden detachment is sufficient to adequately cover the whole county.

Fearrey said the county has experienced an increase in population over the last few years which has not been reflected in an increase in the number of officers assigned to the detachment.

The council passed a resolution to ask the province to review the manpower situation in Minden and request an increase in the number of constables.

The possibility of hiring, in conjunction with the BIA, a night watchman for the village was also discussed.

Adam says he agrees somewhat with the concerns expressed by the councillors and he would "always like to see more men stationed here." But he says the detachment strength is based on criteria established by the government and currently, the Minden detachment has the officers the province thinks are necessary.

The criteria used to determine the strength of any particular detachment include population, number of occurrences and response times. Adam says Haliburton County's size and the fact that the population is spread out is taken into consideration.

Currently the Minden detachment has 24 constables assigned to it. This is in addition to the four supervisory positions and the three civilian employees.

Of the 24 constables, two have been seconded to other duties. One is assigned full-time as a court officer, and one is assigned full-time to community services and marine patrol duties. Presently one constable has been temporarily given Non Commissioned Officer (NCO) duties.

This leaves 19 constables available for patrol. In the worst-case scenario, Adam says there are two men on patrol in the county. In the best case there are as many as seven.

Adam says he feels the overall service to Haliburton is good, although he admits there are times when it could be better. There are occasions, he says, when he would like to have 10 or 12 people working a single shift, but that is not feasible year round.

Other times he says three officers can handle the work load.

Cremation plots recommended to save trees at Twelve Mile Lake council and asked that the cemetery's natural setting be preserved and protected.

She suggested that by establishing cremation plots near the trees, damage to the roots could be avoided. She said up to a dozen local people had agreed to purchase these cremation plots and some had offered to exchange already purchased burial plots.

Councillor Bob Sisson said the Cemetery Board had met with Peter Hynard from the Ministry of Natural Resource's forestry division at the site and had decided to leave all the white pines.

Three red pines are going to have to be cut because they are either dead or dying and some maple trees will have to be removed to make room for an access road into the cemetery.

The local Boy Scouts have agreed to plant 30 new trees on the property next year, assisted by the ministry.

Sisson defended cemetery caretaker George Johnson, and said he takes offence to the accusations that Johnson is out to "butcher" trees. Sisson said Johnson is one of the best caretakers Minden's ever had.

Hynard attended the meeting and said he examined the trees at the request of the board and found the white pines to be in excellent condition. He said the cause of the decline in the health of the red pines is the gravel bed lying under the topsoil. He predicts the remaining red pines will die off in the next 10 or 15 years.

The natural setting of the cemetery is owed to the mature pines, said Hynard, and it will be necessary to do some management in order to preserve it.

He recommends that a tree replacement program be started by underplanting young white pines, which are more tolerant of the soil conditions. Hynard also suggested fertilizing the remaining red pines in order to forestall their decline.

The white pines seem to be tolerant of excavation of graves nearby, said Hynard, and he suggested that graves should not be dug any closer than 10 feet. He estimated the age of the red pines to be about 100 years old and the white pines to be about 90 years old.

Although relieved to hear that the white pines would be saved, Mighton was still concerned that three healthy maples will have to be removed in order to make room for a new access road into the cemetery.

She asked if it was possible to save the trees and just let the hearse drive over the grass.

The answer came from funeral director Gord Monk, who was in the audience during the discussion. Monk said the hearse no longer had enough room to easily manoeuvre in and he said if people notice tire tracks running across a grave site, "there's a lot of flack."

"You can't turn on a dime in a hearse," Monk said.

He said it's necessary to develop an orderly system of plots and build roads to access the sites.

Council assured Mighton that the natural setting of the cemetery would be preserved but changes will be necessary as part of the improvement plans.

"Minden has the two nicest cemeteries in the county," said Sisson referring to the Minden and Bethel sites. "And Twelve Mile Lake is going to be the third."

Minden merchant is retiring

After 23 years as a Main Street merchant, Evelyn Trepanier is retiring.

Ev has been the owner and operator of the Pine Shop gift store and ladies wear store in Minden since 1966. She opened the clothing portion of the store in August of that year and followed a few months later with the gift shop next door. The two businesses were joined by a common hallway at the back and shared an entranceway on the street.

Ev is a native of Alberta who moved to Toronto in 1946. In 1951 she married Bernie Trepanier and the following year they moved to Minden. While raising a family, she worked in her husband's land surveying office until she opened the store in their Main Street building.

The couple have two daughters and two sons, and three grandchildren.

The shopkeeper notes a difference in the tempo of business now, compared to when she first opened her doors. It is more competitive now, she points out, people have and want more choice in their selection. She says that while there were fewer people in the area during the 1960's to 1970's in the winter months, there was generally enough business for her to keep her doors open year-round. Now, there are more people, on a year-round basis. The local economy seems stronger.

After 23 years as a Main Street merchant, Ev says the thing she is going to miss the most is the contact with people. She notes that people would often just drop into the store for a chat, and even those she didn't know were always friendly. It was a pleasure to come to work.

While she will miss the daily contact operating the business offered, Ev is looking forward to just taking it easy and enjoying her spare time at their home on Highway 121 east of Minden. She and her husband have always been enthusiastic gardeners, and she is happy to have additional time to devote to that interest. She may also do some travelling. "In general it will just be nice not to be committed to a schedule," she commented. "I've always enjoyed the work, but there comes a time when...."

Last year Ev sold the gift shop portion of her shop to Ginger Kulas, who now operates it under the name Ginger Lee's Gifts. Janet Hirstwood will be occupying the clothing store section, opening the first of November with a women's fashion store called Main Attraction.

Spawning shoal upgraded

The Ministry of Natural Resources, in conjunction with a private contractor, has rehabilitated a lake trout spawning shoal on Maple Lake in Stanhope Township.

In total, 75 tons of rock rubble was added to the site providing a shoal of approximately 100 square metres.

According to contract biologist Sandra Dosser, "The intent of adding rock rubble on spawning shoals is to increase natural reproduction and establish a self-sustaining lake trout population. By encouraging natural reproduction we are reducing the fishery's dependence on artificially-reared hatchery stock."

Minden returns Ride for Sight with unanimous support from council

As a result of the Ride, local service clubs derive new outside dollars to help with community projects and the value of the event to these clubs is "phenomenal", said Moore.

But, according to the Reeve, the most important aspect of the Ride for Sight, "is the stimulation of our local economy in June, for those people in the food, fuel, entertainment and accommodation sectors. Jobs are created, taxes and bills get paid, as money is brought into this community which may otherwise go elsewhere."

Moore said it was important for council to weigh all the aspects of the event and not allow "a vocal minority to sway our judgement."

Collier had attended a meeting last month asking to have Minden host the event, but Moore and Councillor Lewis Stevens were absent and the remaining Councillors, Bob Sisson and Mike Maher, decided to defer the decision until the whole council could be involved.

At the September meeting, Collier was told that the arena might be unavailable due to repair work and that the size of the camping area on the Fairgrounds would be reduced because of the new ball diamond improvements.

Collier told council last week he was aware of the situation the organizers would be faced with but still wanted to stage the event in Minden. He said he had visited the Fairgrounds and thought the available space would be sufficient for camping.

Collier also said that in past years the riders had stayed away from the existing diamond, and with snow fencing and proper security he sees no threat to the new diamond either.

The township office received about 16 letters from people wishing to either support the Ride or ask that it not return. Sisson said the letters supporting the Ride, made up about 75 per cent of the responses.

Included in the letters was a 22-signature petition from the residents of Staanworth Terrace, supporting the Ride's return. Staanworth Terrace is the senior's apartments located next to the arena and fairgrounds.

Stanhope Deputy-Reeve Ann Barker addressed council and said she attended the meeting when Ride for Sight first came to the county and was disappointed that Stanhope was not chosen to host the event. She asked Maher why he thought 5,000 people was excessive for the Ride for Sight when Minden had put in a bid to host 10,000 people for the Haliburton Highland Games.

Maher said the difference was between, "the pipes under your arm and the pipes on a motorcycle."

He reminded the audience that if he and Sisson had wanted to prevent the Ride from returning to Minden they could have taken a vote at the September meeting and "shot it down very easily." Instead, they decided to give it a full hearing.

Sisson said considering the support given the event in the letters from Minden residents he had no choice but to vote for its return.

The resolution which granted the Ride permission to return to Minden also appointed Moore as the local co-ordinator, a position held by Maher last year. At first Moore was reluctant to call for a vote, saying he had no time to act as co-ordinator, but he relented promising to delegate the responsibilities.

Opinions are unfortunate

Editor:

Re.: Resident shares thoughts on hot issues, The Times, October 10.

It is most unfortunate that Mr. Fomenko is of the opinion that "The Senior Apartments and Staanworth Court should never have been built there", due to the noise from events held at the fairgrounds. The tenants from Staanworth Court and Staanworth Terrace do not share his opinion, having very few, if any complaints about the noise from these events. The residents of Staanworth Apartments find it desirable to have the fairground events so easily accessible, and have participated actively in supporting the Ride For Sight Return to the Minden area.

The opinion of the residents of Staanworth Apartments is that the buildings are ideally situated: within walking distance of curling; shuffleboard; tennis; the Community Centre; arena; ball park and the library. And of course not overlooking the convenience of living in town, close to shopping and services.

Barb Sisson,
Minden.

Correction

Anson, Hindon and Minden Townships Council received a $76,000 PRIDE grant to help with the planned improvements to the downtown core.

A story in last week's paper incorrectly set that figure at $760,000.

Bob and Bette Herlihey celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary Saturday, October 7th, 1989 at a cocktail party followed by dinner and dancing at PineStone Inn. The party was hosted by their children, Heather and John Judson, and Robert and Donna Herlihey and was attended by their many relatives and friends both local and from as far away as Montreal, Ottawa and London.

A lesson in geography

Plewman Creek does not flow into Burnt River as he indicated. It would be physically impossible for that to happen. He will have to blame the problems of the river on some other source. Plewman Creek begins its long journey in Plewman Lake. From there it flows north to what used to be called Olives Lake and from there south and west eventually emptying into Denna Creek which in turn empties into Gull Lake south of Kilcoo Camp.

The Creek does not flow through the GKW property or anywhere near it. If it passes through his property then he is quite isolated as the creek flows through swamp and forest area for its entire distance. I don't believe there is much in the way of habitation except hunting camps in the area.

As the prevailing winds blow from west to east it would be difficult to have odours of any kind travelling in the reverse direction. I would suggest that he investigate closer to home for the source of the odours as they are not coming from the source that he is suggesting.

I would recommend that he have his facts correct before writing next year's annual letter to the paper.

Cartoon was obscene

Editor:

I am compelled to write in response to the Ride for Sight issue. Particularly after opening the front page of the October 10 issue of The Times and being confronted with an obscene and unwarranted portrayal of bikers in general. I'm referring to the cartoon which is definitely in poor taste. If the cartoonist has something to say, why not put forth an intelligent argument.

The Ride for Sight is a big success story which motorcyclists from around the country and the citizens of Minden and area are to be credited for. Sure the Ride has some minor problems that have to be dealt with. Invite 5,000 people from any walk of life to your town for a weekend and see what you're faced with. It's pretty hard for me to take any of the arguments against the Ride seriously, considering the benefits for the area and the purpose of the Ride, to aid medical research.

In a recent issue of The Times, I read a remark by Mike Maher, Councillor for Minden, stating that the fairgrounds and arena might be closed for repairs around the time reserved for the Ride for Sight next summer. Wouldn't that be a coincidence? I thought bikers were supposed to be the devious ones.

Wayne Mitchell,
Minden.

Editor's note: I think that if you take a closer look at the cartoon you will find you have misinterpreted its message.

Concerns prompted work

Preliminary spawning shoal assessments coupled with anglers concerns that the quality of fishing had declined in the past several years, prompted the rehabilitation work. Initially, it was found that virtually no suitable substrate was available to spawning lake trout.

"Without suitable substrate", Dosser points out, "the lake trout eggs are exposed to predation from crayfish, other fish species and even their own kind." The result is a decline in reproductive success and subsequently a decline in the lake trout population.

In the past, the Ministry has been involved with several rehabilitation projects including Community Fisheries Involvement Projects (CFIP) where cottagers have volunteered their time to rehabilitate spawning shoals on their lake. However, the rehabilitation work conducted on Maple Lake was the first of its kind for this district. Heavy equipment including backhoe, barge and bobcat were used to load and transport the rock to the spawning shoal. The work was completed in two days and was funded by the Resident Sport Fishing Licence revenues.

coated boffins before the satellite was lobbed heavenward. A Canadian Space Agency spokesman explains that they hope to determine how serious bone injuries heal in space.

Scientifically justifiable I suppose, and it's hard to work up a huge head of sympathy for rats. But it doesn't make me feel any better about man's earthly stewardship.

Still, that's practically humane compared to a military experiment going on right now at Louisiana State University. Researchers there are working on a $1.8 million dollar contract from the U.S. Army to...

Shoot cats.

In the head. Hundreds of them. It's a five year study. The animals are anesthetized, shot in the head, then left to recover on their own. "The research is concerned with developing a better understanding of what happens when there is a ballistic injury to the brain" a University spokesman explains loftily. Translation: let's plug some cats and see what happens. By way of consolation, the spokesman adds that the bullets being used are "very tiny" -- only weighing about .03 grams. But a slug in the head is a slug in the head. And since the research is supposed to help the army learn how to return brain-injured soldiers to active duty as quickly as possible, you have to wonder why they don't leave the cats in peace and drill a few human "subjects" in the temple.

Starting perhaps with the lamebrain who thought up such a project.

Five years. $1.8 million dollars. Want to hear what their main conclusion is so far?

That cats tend to stop breathing when shot.

Mind you, we humans don't have to be cruel to be bizzare. Sometimes our attempts to be kind to animals look equally outlandish.

Take the Denver beavers for instance. There are about 100 beavers chugging around the river-front park system in downtown Denver, Colorado, doing what comes naturally to beavers -- which is to say chopping down trees and making little beavers. The Denver rodents are good at both pastimes -- especially the tree chomping part. So much so that city officials estimate they are felling about $200,000 worth of city timber every year.

What to do -- shoot 'em? Nope. Beavers are cute and cuddly. The public would be outraged -- even in trigger-happy Denver. Live trap them? Too pricey. It would cost about $500 per animal to net and release them elsewhere.

Instead, they've decided on surgery. Vasectomies for the guys, tubal ligations for the ladies. A team of Denver veterinarians is all lined up and ready to perform the mini-knife work.

Better than killing them, I guess -- although when you think about it, Denver's problem isn't an oversupply of beavers. It's an oversupply of people. Just like the rest of the world.

Vasectomies and tubal ligations aren't a bad solution. They've just picked the wrong species to do them on.

Physician, nick thyself.

Waterway Report

The closing of the season is approaching and this report will be the last for 1989. The Haliburton area lakes averaged 40 percent on October 2. This was 6.5 percent less than average, but 12 percent greater than in 1987 and 5.5 percent greater than 1988.

During the week of October 8 to 14, some resetting of the Trent-Severn Waterway dams will be done to get ready for winter. Little water remains to discharge from the upper lakes and stoplogs need to be replaced in some to get up to winter setting.

Most lakes along the canal route are lowered somewhat after navigation ends to make room for fall runoff, which increases due to reduced evaporation.

New airport manager

Newly appointed airport manager Michael Carey stands at the end of the latest addition to the Highlands transportation network.

The 760 metre (nearly 2500 feet) Stanhope Airport runway just received its paved topping last week and is expected to be approved for operation within a week. The paving project included the 18 metre wide runway and taxiing strips to the reception building which is currently undergoing renovations as well.

Carey was appointed to the post of Airport Manager at the October 11 meeting of Stanhope Council. He also assumed the position of airport safety officer.

The manager is a recent graduate of the Civil Aviation, airport management course at Georgian College in Barrie. He is a native of Kingston.

Limited operational approval could be granted for the airport later this week. However, installation of lighting, which is yet to be completed, and the fueling facilities mean it will be a number of weeks before the Stanhope Airport is used to its fullest potential.

Smash 'em crash 'em

More than 1,000 spectators braved chilly temperatures October 7 to take in one of the last outdoor events of the fall season. The demolition derby, sponsored by the Kinsmen Club of Minden, pit the skills of drivers and tenacity of their machines against each other in a fight to the finish. Close to 100 cars met their demise during the afternoon and when all the dust had settled, Jim Grant of Mount Albert was driving the only car still moving. His reward was $1,000. In second place was Dave Burger of Minden, with $600 in prize money, followed by Bill Stromberg of Minden, who received $400. The consolation prize of $300 went to Wayne Greer of Lindsay. Lisa Bunn took the Powder Puff event, claiming the $200 prize money.

Council not interested in committee

Minden council has decided not to get involved in the formation of an environmental advisory committee.

The councillors were considering a request by Canarvon resident Gordon Smith that a committee be formed to consider environmental issues and make recommendations to council.

Smith had presented a proposal to council and a statement of the committee's purpose in late August. He said such a committee would provide a forum through which ratepayers could make their concerns known to the township.

Reeve Ray Moore supported the idea for the committee, saying it would be a good thing and that councillors don't have time to "run around looking at environmental problems."

Although the other councillors agreed that public input is important, they were reluctant to add another municipal committee to their list of duties.

"It's nice to have input as long as it doesn't slow down the process," said Councillor Mike Maher. He said the input should be constructive not destructive.

Bob Sisson said issues relating to the environment, such as the fate of the trees at Twelve Mile Lake Cemetery, can be handled without having to form a new committee.

Although they won't be involved, council will inform Smith that if he decides to go ahead and form a citizen's committee on his own, the council will be willing to listen to any recommendations the committee might have.

THANK YOU

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all those who attended the Grand Opening of our new building on October 5, 6 and 7. Also special thanks to all our customers who have patronized us over the years. Thanks to the contractors and their staff for the fine workmanship in making the building a reality.

Snowdon ratepayers association is formed

Residents angered at the proposal for a wrecking yard are getting together to fight it.

A Snowdon Township ratepayers association is being formed to combat the proposal to establish a salvage yard in Gelert.

Jean and Stan Farrell, who live on the Drag River, near where the automobile salvage yard is to be located, are calling a meeting for October 25 to form an association. The first goal of this association will be to fight the local rezoning that would allow Bill Linnington to set up the salvage yard on his 21-acre property on County Road 1.

Two readings have already been given to the bylaw that would permit Linnington to operate a salvage yard. The third reading is expected to be given at the next council meeting on November 13. In the mean time, Linnington is to meet certain conditions, such as removing the cars that are already situated on his property.

Mrs. Farrell said there were between 30 and 40 people out at the last meeting to object to the rezoning. However, council went ahead and gave the bylaw two of the three readings necessary for its adoption. "We're dead set against it," said Mrs. Farrell. "There's no reason for it to be there." She said her biggest fear is that runoff from the salvage yard will make its way into the Drag River. Mr. Farrell called it a "noxious industry" and said it will be "visually unpleasant."

Linnington has promised to take every precaution to make sure the salvage yard does not pollute the area's environment. He plans to build a garage with underground tanks to store the fluids drained from the vehicles. He also says he will have no more than 300 vehicles on the site before a crusher will be called in to haul them away.

Linnington has been working on this proposal for more than two years to get his project to this point. Once council gives a final reading to the bylaw, objectors will have the option of requesting an Ontario Municipal Board hearing.

Although the salvage yard proposal is the issue that is spawning the ratepayers association, Mrs. Linnington hopes it will stay together to provide a voice in other issues. "It's an association that in the future will deal with issues like this to guard the environment."

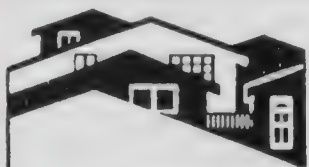

The initial meeting is set for 7 p.m. at the community centre in Gelert.

More seatbelt use minister's target

Ontario Transportation Minister William Wrye has set a target of over 90 per cent seat belt use in Ontario in the 1990's.

Wrye said that after pioneering in seat belt legislation in North America, Ontario has fallen to eighth place among the provinces in the percentage of seat belt use. Almost a third of Ontario drivers and passengers still fail to buckle up despite statistics showing they are 26 times more likely to be killed in a collision than people who wear their seat belts.

The Transportation Minister was speaking at a joint news conference announcing seat belt enforcement and education campaign in October. It was held by the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police and the Ministries of the Solicitor General, Transportation and Health.

Wrye said young people are less likely to wear seat belts than the general population, yet more likely to have accidents. One out of every six drivers aged 16 is involved in an accident.

Wrye said the one-month enforcement and education campaign is just the beginning of an ongoing drive to raise seat belt use in Ontario from its present 70 per cent to over 90 per cent in the 1990's. That increase would save lives and reduce the severity of injuries to people involved in motor vehicle accidents.
